

Editor's Notes

New and Upcoming

Norman A. Dolch, Editor-in-Chief

University of North Texas

JNEL is taking the lead in organizing a teaching interest group within the International Society for Third-Sector Research (ISTR). Although focused on research, many faculty and professionals who teach participate in ISTR, and an effort is underway to identify persons interested in joining this group. Do you know someone who is a member and might join this effort? If so, ask them to contact me. To foster connections, a quarterly newsletter for international scholars and professionals interested in promoting nonprofit/NGO education broadly defined has been started.

Several JNEL publishing initiatives are currently in preparation. Manuscripts from the 2016 meeting of the Alliance for Nonprofit Management will be published in the last issue of this year or early in 2018. NACC will hold its biannual conference in Indianapolis from July 31–August 2, and JNEL will publish the proceedings again. A special themed issue on social media and the classroom is being developed under the guidance of Jimmy A. Young at the Department of Social Work, California State University San Marcos. Finally, the ARNOVA Governance Section has a special issue/themed issue on governance, which should be available shortly. JNEL is excited about all of these initiatives and hopes they are well received by our readers and supporters.

This issue has a number of research-based articles, an administrative program article, and a book review. Several case studies are currently under review and should appear in Issue 4 of this year. Keep in mind that JNEL is interested in essays of classroom experiences, and activities and assignments that work well for teachers.

As always, I am interested in your thoughts regarding JNEL and what we can do to make the journal better and more useful. If you are interested in editing a themed issue, please do not hesitate to contact me. I hope you enjoy this issue of JNEL.